PREFACE

PURPOSE OF THIS DIRECTORY

Santa Clara County is a large and diverse county encompassing a growing and dynamic metropolitan area. This Data Source Directory is intended to held guide individuals, agencies, organizations, and businesses toward useful sources of information concerning current conditions, trends, and projected conditions in our ever-changing county.

ORGANIZATION OF INFORMATION

Data listings in this directory are grouped together under broad subject categories listed alphabetically from "Agriculture" to "Transportation." Included under each data listing is information concerning:

1. The geographic area for which data and information are reported (such as County, cities),

2. The agency responsible for generating or reporting the data, and

3. The frequency of publication or most recent issue.

AVAILABILITY AND COST OF DATA

The availability and cost of the data cited varies - some agencies provide data on a subscription basis, some provide data free upon request, and some require that their data be used as reference information at their offices. The addresses and phone numbers of the agencies responsible for generating or reporting the data are listed in the "Source Addresses and Phone Numbers" section in the back of this directory.

DATA RESOURCES AT LOCAL LIBRARIES

Many questions relating to Census material, government documents, and other published data can be answered by reference librarians at public and college libraries. Libraries in Santa Clara County with major reference capabilities are listed in the "Source Addresses and Phone Numbers" section of this directory.

TO SUGGEST ADDITIONS OR CORRECTIONS

This is the second edition of the Data Source Directory. The directory does not list every source of available data concerning Santa Clara County. Suggestions regarding additions, omissions, or corrections for future editions are invited and should be directed to:
